Information Sheet No.7

Internet and social media safety

At The SNAP Centre and on the SNAP helpline we are often asked for help with this particular issue. Increasingly, children and young people are learning, playing and socialising using online resources. Parents are often 'left behind' as technology advances and consoles, mobile phones, tablets and computers are upgraded. New Apps, software, online games and social media platforms are introduced frequently and it is difficult for parents to ensure they are fully protecting their vulnerable young person from potential hazards and negative experiences online.

With technology devices being top of the list for things to buy children and young people for Christmas, SNAP has gathered some information sources and websites that offer tips and guidance to help navigate this tricky topic.

www.saferinternet.org.uk - This website has a section for parents and carers giving e-safety tips, advice and resources to help children and young people stay safe on the Internet.

www.childnet.com - The parents section on this website gives all the information you need to keep your child safe online. If you're puzzled by parental controls or would like to know more about gaming, this section can help. There are useful tips to keep up to speed with what young people are doing online and ways to keep your child safe.

www.internetmatters.org - Advice and simple things you can do to make sure your children are using the Internet safely, from pre-school to teens.

www.connectsafely.org/safety-tips-advice/ - Tips and advice on all aspects of online activity, with parent guides on topics such as cyberbullying, Snapchat, mobile phones, cyber security and Virtual World Safety Tips for Parents of Teens.

Learning disabilities, autism and internet safety: A parent's guide - The charity Cerebra has produced a useful guide on all aspects of Internet safety for parents of children and young people with learning disabilities and autism.
